BUILD — FOR FOUNDERS

The Co.LLab™ Founders Organization

Welcome. This is the infrastructure behind your enterprise — The IV Phases™ model, applied to you and what you're building.

PHASE
Build · Founders Organization

INVESTMENT
Founder / Legacy Founder

WELCOME

You have the momentum. Now the infrastructure.

Most founders don't fail from lack of talent, vision, or effort. They stall because the enterprise around them was never built to carry what they're asking it to carry — no decision infrastructure, no operating systems, no plan for anything to run without the founder personally in every room. The Founders Organization exists to fix exactly that, using the same model — The IV Phases™ behind everything in The Co.LLab™ ecosystem.

> WHY THIS IS SEPARATE FROM THE .LLAB™
> The Founders Organization has its own journey. Founders face a specific problem — significant talent and momentum without the leadership infrastructure required to make it durable — and this program is built around that problem specifically, not as a generic membership.

What's included

- Full access to The IV Phases™ infrastructure model, applied specifically to founders and early enterprises.
- The founder community — a working group of people building through the same phases, at the same time.
- Every resource in the introductory cohort, at your founding-rate lock-in.

THE FRAMEWORK

The IV Phases™ model, applied to founders.

1. Foundations
   Understanding the founder — purpose, potential, values, and identity — before touching the org chart. Most founders design their organization's structure before they've been honest with themselves about what they actually want it to be. This phase reverses that order.

2. Infrastructure Planning & Management
   Determining what infrastructure the enterprise actually needs, and how the pieces connect — not every piece of infrastructure a bigger company has, but the specific pieces that this enterprise, at this stage, actually requires.

3. Internal Operating Systems
   Structures, decision pathways, and accountability that outlast any one hire — including the founder. This is where the enterprise stops depending entirely on the founder's memory and starts running on designed systems.

4. Preservation
   An organization that can grow, transfer, and run — beyond the founder, into legacy. The test of everything built in the first three phases: does it survive the founder stepping back, even briefly?

> Build the infrastructure. Strengthen the organization. Create the legacy.

GETTING STARTED

Your first 30 days.

The Founders Organization works best when you engage with it in order — don't skip straight to systems before you've done the Foundations work.

WEEK	FOCUS
Week 1	Foundations — clarify your own purpose, values, and what "success" actually means to you, separate from what you think it should mean.
Week 2	Infrastructure Planning — map what your enterprise genuinely needs right now, resisting the urge to build for a company you aren't yet.
Week 3	Introduce yourself in the founder community — the fastest way to find where your blind spots are is to hear how other founders are thinking about theirs.
Week 4	Pick one operating system to start building — a decision rule, a communication rhythm — and ship it before month's end.

WHAT ARE YOU BUILDING — AND WHAT INFRASTRUCTURE DOES IT NEED TO SURVIVE, PERFORM, GROW, AND BECOME LEGACY?

COMMUNITY

Built for people who want to build seriously.

The founder community isn't based on everyone agreeing. You'll find people who question your assumptions, push back on your plans, and occasionally propose something that sounds a little ridiculous until it doesn't. That's by design.

- We can disagree, question things, explore strange ideas, and still treat each other with respect.
- No hate. No disrespect. This is for people who want to think, investigate, question, theorize, and build.

Legacy Founder

If you joined at the Legacy Founder tier, you also have priority infrastructure planning support and the deepest founding-rate lock-in available in this cohort — use it. Reach out early rather than waiting until something is already on fire.

Questions

Reach us directly at letsbuildleadership@gmail.com — a real person reads and replies to every message.